Terms

I, the undersigned, hereby submit my work for critical analysis and editing services to be performed by Launch Pad Media of River Forest, IL, and I agree to the terms and conditions outlined below:

Representatives of Launch Pad Media will use a printed copy of the author's manuscript to mark up corrections needed and will also provide a typewritten report highlighting specific areas where improvements are suggested.

Launch Pad Media will not be responsible for making the changes to the electronic master copy of the author's work, unless otherwise specified herein. It is understood that the suggestions for improvement provided by Launch Pad Media can be used in whole or in part, as the author sees fit; therefore, the author of the work is left with the authority to include any and all improvements and suggestions during their next rewrite. Use of these corrections and suggestions does not constitute any claim to authorship by Launch Pad Media or its representatives.

Launch Pad Media will contact the client via e-mail or phone to confirm receipt of the manuscript and acceptance of this editing agreement and to give a time estimate for this project.

Acceptance of a deposit payment does not mean work will begin on your project immediately. We generally have a waiting list going out several months. Your deposit secures a slot on our schedule. While we do our best to accurately estimate the timeframe for each project, turnaround times may vary based on the scope of the project and our current project load.

If extensive developmental work is needed, we may advise that the copyediting be postponed until a revised draft is prepared in order to avoid having to copyedit twice. If author prefers, copyediting can be performed on 1 or 2 sample chapters to serve as a guideline during this revision process.

Full payment of balance due must be received before we return the completed project and our report to you. Once work has begun, deposits are non-refundable.
